Cumberland County DSS Faith in Action Program

FAYETTEVILLE – Cumberland County Department of Social Services is committed to strengthening services to families and believes that one of the most effective ways to do this is by collaborating with churches, neighborhoods and communities.

Sylvia Cook, the Faith Community Coordinator, would like to meet with pastors or representatives from their congregations and other organizations in the community to discuss the “Faith In Action” program, which is a faith-based, family-empowerment concept providing services to families to enable them to transition from welfare to work.

“We also help other individuals who can benefit from our program. We need the support of our entire community in order to make a difference, so let’s all work together and be a catalyst for change in our communities,” Cook says.

For more information, call 677-2033 or e-mail Sylviacook@ccdssnc.com. Visit our Web site at www.ccdssnc.com to learn more about our vision and mission to support families in their quest for self-sufficiency.

Please contact Ms. Cook for a copy of our Faith in Action brochure.
