King Re-elected to National Organization's Board

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Cumberland County Commissioner Billy King was re-elected to a two-year term to the Board of Directors for the National Association of Counties (NACo) during NACo's Annual Conference, which was held July 15-19 in Portland, Ore.

King was elected to his third two-year term holding one of three seats earned by North Carolina on the NACo Board. NACo is the only national organization representing county government. The NACo Board of Directors supervises, manages and controls the business and property of the association, determines NACo's mission as identified by the members and monitors NACo's success in fulfilling its mission.

Due to his service on the NACo Board, King also becomes a member of the Board of Directors for the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners (NCACC). King served as NCACC president in 1996-97.

King has been a Cumberland County Commissioner since 1990 and is the longest-serving member of the board.

"I look forward to serving another term on the boards for both NACo and the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners and working on issues at the state and national level affecting county government," King said.

The National Association of Counties (NACo) is the only national organization that represents county governments in the United States. Founded in 1935, NACo provides essential services to the nation's 3,068 counties. NACo advances issues with a unified voice before the federal government, improves the public's understanding of county government, assists counties in finding and sharing innovative solutions through education and research, and provides value-added services to save counties and taxpayers money.
