Library Hosts Job Fair and Employment Workshops

The Cumberland County Public Library & Information Center hosts its 2nd Annual Job Fair on June 8, from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. at Headquarters Library, 300 Maiden Lane.

Job seekers can learn about various opportunities in banking, manufacturing, sales, finance, technical, trade, information, technology and the military along with federal and county governments. Representatives from Fayetteville State University, Fayetteville Technical Community College and PipelineNC (a BRAC task force-initiated Web-based job searching portal) will be on hand to answer questions.

Workshops throughout the day include classes on interview tips, resume review, resume building basics and introduction to online job and career resources. Like all library locations, Headquarters Library provides free wireless internet access for individuals with their own laptops.

Those who cannot attend the Job Fair may visit the Job & Career Resource Center on the library's web site or in person at any location. Through "Book a Librarian," individuals may request an appointment with a librarian for in-depth assistance.

Job searching can be one of the most frustrating and humbling experiences a person has to endure. The Cumberland County Public Library & Information Center offers many resources to assist you in not only making a good first impression, but also in making your job search a success.

For more information about the Job Fair and the Job & Career Resource Centers, contact Larry Gavin, Bordeaux Branch Manager at (910) 424-4008, text "ccplinfo" to 66746, or find us on Facebook.
