Edge Elected Second Vice President of State Association

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. – Cumberland County Commissioner Kenneth Edge was elected second vice president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners at the group's annual conference this weekend in Hickory.

Edge is serving in the first year of this third term as a county commissioner. Over the years he has been a member of the NCACC Public Education Steering Committee, the Legislative Goals Committee, District 6 Director of NCACC (2005-06) and At-Large Director (2008-09).

“I would like to take the experience I have gained and the lessons learned to address the critical issues that face individual counties and our state organization,” he said. “Through thoughtful, innovative, creative and nonpartisan solutions we can make our state and counties stronger.”

NCACC is one of the most successful and active statewide local government associations in the nation. The state's 100 counties are vibrant and essential partners with state government in providing services to the state's more than eight million citizens. NCACC serves as the counties' advocate before the executive, legislative and judicial branches of state government.

The association employs a professional staff to run the day-to-day operations and to provide expertise in the areas of lobbying, fiscal and legal research, communications, intergovernmental relations, information technology, field visits and risk management services.
