Health Director To Serve On Public Health Advisory Board

FAYETTEVILLE – The Center for Public Health Quality has invited Cumberland County Department of Public Health Director Buck Wilson to serve on its advisory board.

The center, which originated as part of the North Carolina Center for Public Health Quality, is a national resource for quality improvement among public health organizations. It provides quality improvement training and technical assistance programs to public health organizations nationally.

In the invitation letter, Dr. Greg Randolph, the center's director, said Wilson's "leadership experience and commitment to making a difference in the health and well-being of North Carolina is well recognized and will be of great value to our future direction." The center, Randolph said, is focused on transforming North Carolina's public health system to be effective and efficient in a challenging environment.

Wilson serves on the North Carolina Child Fatality Task Force and was named the 2013 North Carolina Health Director of the Year by the N.C. Association of Local Health Directors.
