County Manager Appointed to NACo Advisory Committee

FAYETTEVILLE – Cumberland County Manager Amy Cannon has been appointed to the Financial Services Center Advisory Committee of the National Association of Counties (NACo), which creates and delivers transformative solutions to public entities. The Financial Services program focuses on purchasing, retirement, finance and health care.

“I’m very honored to have the opportunity to serve on a national committee and I look forward to representing Cumberland County on this committee,” Cannon said.

Cannon is also an ICMA (International City/County Management Association) Credentialed Manager. She has been the Cumberland County Manager since 2014, after serving as the deputy county manager for three years and the assistant county manager for financial and administrative services for 11 years. In addition, she has been with Cumberland County for 27 years and was the County’s finance director for 15 years.

Ms. Cannon is a Fayetteville native and Seventy-First High School graduate. She is a certified public accountant and a North Carolina Certified Government Finance Officer.

She was appointed by NACo President Roy Charles Brooks and has been invited to participate in the “Serving the Underserved: Counties Addressing Poverty” initiative that includes a poverty summit in December in Fort Worth, Texas.
